

Mouz Pamp Memorial Scholarship

Distributed by the Bay College Foundation

History

Mouz Pamp, director of program “The Bridge Between Two Worlds,” helped advise Michigan schools on how to incorporate Native American culture and history into their educational programs. He helped local families start Mid-Winter Powwows and believed that the experience was one that should be shared by all people. All proceeds from these Powwows form the Mouz Pamp Memorial Scholarship. Pamp believed it was important for people to learn about true Indian culture while breaking down the barriers of Native American stereotypes and misunderstanding.
